ALLIED BATTLESHIPS PENETRATE PASSAGE OF THE DARDANELLES

Giant Fleet Continues to Hammer at Inner Forts of Gateway to Constantinople After Reducing Outer Forts.

PENETRATES STRAITS 14 MILES FROM ENTRANCE

Sultan Reported Preparing to Flee Turkish Capital--Russians Again Claiming Land Victory Over Germans

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 27.—British and French warships continue to hammer away today at the doors of the Dardanelles, which close Russia's granary and the necessity of releasing the wheat accumulated on the shores of the Black sea has led to a general belief that the attack is a serious undertaking, and not merely a demonstration.

Official announcements declare that after reduction of the four outer forts mine sweepers went to work within the straits under protection of the guns of the fleet. Unofficial dispatches from Athens and Rome assert that at least one French warship actually has penetrated the passage.

The Athens correspondent of the Paris Matin says:

"After complete destruction of the forts at the entrance to the Dardanelles, the allied fleet penetrated the straits and shelled the Interior forts. It proceeded down the Dardanelles fourteen miles from the netrance."

Another dispatch to the Matin from Athens repeats the story published several times recently that the Sultan of Turkey is preparing to leave Constantinople, and that imperial trains are kept with steam up in the railroad stations. The dispatch adds that inhabitants of the Prinkipo Island, in the sea of Marmora, near Constantinople, have been instructed to hold themselves in readiness to leave.

Germany remains silent regarding her share in the military operations both in the east and in the west. Austria declares that Austrian and German forces are holding their own in the Carpathian and eastern fields.

Petrograd, less reticent, announces a populace of German attacks in North Poland with heavy losses. As a result of desperate fighting, the Russian staff claims to have forced back the Germans along a front of 25 miles in the Prasnysz region.

The impression is growing in England that the German advance in East Prussia is due mainly to political, and economic motives and that consequently it is without great strategic effect on the eastern campaign as a whole.

In the west the French continue to claim advances in the Champagne district, with quiet prevailing along the rest of the line.

The ship building strike is causing some concern in London, but the prompt action of the government in ordering resumption of work during arbitration is expected to settle the trouble.

Part of Russian Twentieth Still Battles Against Foe

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Feb. 27.—A dispatch to the Times from Petrograd says that information has been received in the Russian capital that several units belonging to the twentieth corps, which was surrounded by the Germans in the retired from East Prussia, still are fighting stubbornly and probably will be able to rejoin the Russian army.

HOT PROHI FIGHT IS PROMISED IN MICHIGAN

Bill Would Remove Saloons Five Miles From State Schools

(By Associated Press.)

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 27.—One of the warmest legislative fights over a prohibition measure ever waged in Michigan is expected to occur in the state senate soon. The senate committee on liquor traffic yesterday voted to favorably report a bill which prohibits the sale of liquor within a radius of five miles from certain state educational institutions.

Opponents of the bill declare it would practically close all of the saloons in Ann Arbor, Lansing, Houghton, Marquette, Kaamazoo, Mount Pleasant and Ypsilanti. State educational institutions mentioned in the bill are located in these cities.

WEST VIRGINIA IS NOW UNDER RIGID LIQUOR LAW

(By Associated Press.)

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 27.—Amendments to the Yost prohibition law which become operative today are expected to further decrease the consumption of intoxicating liquors in the state.

Under the law as it now stands no liquor shipments of larger quantity than half a gallon can be brought into the state unless the quantity and quality are marked in large black letters on the package. Alcoholic beverages may not be kept in any bowling alley, pool room, boat house, public building, park, road or alley.

TEN COUNTIES RELEASED FROM CATTLE QUARANTINE

The counties of Walker, Catoosa, Whitfield, Murray, Gilmer, Dawson, Forsyth, Milton, Cobb and Madison have been released from quarantine against splenic fever in cattle, by an order of Secretary of Agriculture Houston.

He also modified another order so that a nicotine dip for cattle and sheep may be used, and made additional modifications in the regulations regarding the movement of cattle from one quarantined section to another.

Wife of German in Passport Difficulty Writes to President

Mrs. Richard P. Stegler Declares Captain Boy-Ed, German Naval Attache, Framed Up the Forgery

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—President Wilson today received a letter from Mrs. Richard P. Stegler, a Georgia woman, wife of the German reservist arrested in New York on charge of fraudulently obtaining an American passport, declaring Stegler had been led into the project by Captain Boy-Ed, German naval attache here.

Mrs. Stegler asked that her husband be set free. Her letter was referred to the department of justice, which is in charge of the investigation into the case.

Mrs. Stegler wrote the president Captain Boy-Ed had promised her husband $150 a month for her support while Stegler was abroad and that she would be given $150 a month for life if he was killed. She declared she had no money now and did not know how she could support herself unless her husband were released.

"When the secret service men came to see my husband," wrote Mrs. Stegler, "he told them the truth, because he wanted everything to be known. He could have burned the passports and saved himself from being accused of forgery, but he came right out and told everything."

Motion Picture Actor Is Shot and Killed in Staging Battle Scene

(By Associated Press.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 27.—An investigation was under way today of the death of Clarence Chandler, a motion picture actor who was shot and killed yesterday in the staging of a battle scene in the San Fernando Valley near here.

Chandler was a member of an attacking party instructed to capture soldiers barricaded in a cabin. Before word was given for them to begin firing with revolvers, a single shot was heard and Chandler fell in the midst of his companions, shot in the forehead.

All threw down their weapons. No one had claim to the one revolver with a discharged cartridge.

The pistols had been loaned with bullets to produce a realistic scene in shooting down the door of the cabin.

COUNSEL FOR BECKER TO APPEAL HIS CASE

Motion for New Trial Will Be Taken Before State Court of Appeals

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The next move of counsel for Charles Becker, whom the supreme court yesterday denied a new trial for the murder of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal, will be an argument before the court of appeals on legal points in the record of this new effort to have Becker's case come more before a jury.

Martin T. Manton, who conducted the former police lieutenant's case before Justice Weeks, was expected to file notice of appeal from the court's decision with District Attorney Perkins today. The motion for a reversal of Justice Weeks' decision is expected to be argued before the court of appeals on March 24.

LEAKING STEAMSHIP IS TRYING TO REACH HALIFAX

Mongolian Is Using Own Steam Under Convoy of Coast Guard Cutter

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The Allan line steamship Mongolian, which sent out a wireless call for help yesterday because she was leaking badly, 400 miles off the Nova Scotian coast, is heading for Halifax under her own power and should reach there tomorrow, local agents of the line announced today. The coast guard cutter Seneca is convoying the Mongolian, which has aboard 200 passengers bound for Glasgow.

35 DRIVERS ENTERED IN SIXTH GRAND PRIX AUTO CONTEST TODAY

Race of 402 Miles Will Be Run on the Panama-Pacific Exposition Four Mile Course at San Francisco

WEATHER IS IDEAL AND TRACK IN GOOD SHAPE

Pullen, Oldfield, DePalma, Cooper and Bragg Among Speed Stars Who Will Contest for $7,000 Prizes

(By Associated Press.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 27.—Thirty-five drivers tuned up their cars today for the sixth Grand Prix automobile race scheduled to start at 10:30 a. m. on the Panama-Pacific exposition four-mile course. The cars were to be started three abreast at intervals of fifteen seconds.

Eddie Pullen, Barney Oldfield, Ralph De Palma, Earl Cooper and Caleb Bragg were among the speed stars entered for the 402-mile grind which, it was expected, would require five hours to finish.

With ideal weather and a track which experts declared was in perfect condition it was thought a new record might be made. Two right angle turns and other irregularities in the course offered, however, formidable handicaps against fast time.

Every precaution had been taken to guard against accidents to racers and spectators.

Besides the Grand Prix cup, cash prizes amounting to $7,000 were the rewards for the successful contestants.

DRIVERS AND CARS.

The following is the list of drivers and their cars.

FIRST COTTON FROM SOUTH GOES THROUGH BIG CANAL

Short Route Saved Vessel Over Five Thousand Dollars, Estimate

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The first shipload of cotton from the south, amounting to 3,270 tons went through the Panama canal October 23, last, on the steamship Penrith Castle. It was bound from Galveston for Yokohama, Japan. The same steamship made the return trip through the canal in February with a cargo from Seattle for Liverpool, made up principally of wheat for Europe.

It was estimated that on her cotton cargo the vessel saved $5.40 by using the canal instead of going around South America to get to Japan. Even on the trip from Seattle to Liverpool there will be a saving of twenty-three days at sea or $1,118 by the canal route.

ALCOHOL SUPPLY OF GERMANY RUNS SHORT

Deliveries of Brandy for Drinking Purposes Will Be Limited

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Via London, Feb. 27.—Germany's alcohol supply is so far below the demand that the so-called "spirits central" organization, which primarily supplies the army's needs, has announced it will limit sharply deliveries of brandy and spirits for other purposes, especially for drinking. About 40 per cent of the former amount will be allowed the larger industries for use in March and slightly more to smaller concerns. Use of denatured alcohol for fuel and lights also must be curtailed.

An effort will be made to save for human consumption a large portion of the supply of potatoes now in distilleries and to induce distilleries to undertake production of crude sugar.

RAILWAY COMMISSION FIXES RATE ON FRUIT

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Railroads carrying grape fruit and orange shipments north from Jacksonville and other basing points in Florida today were ordered by the interstate commerce commission to establish a rate of not more than $1.62 1-3 per hundred pounds for oranges in carloads and oranges and grapefruit in mixed carloads from these points to Billings, Buette, Helena and Great Falls, Mont.

LUSITANIA AMONG SHIPS SAILING FROM NEW YORK

One of American Steamers Has Stars and Stripes Painted on Both Sides of the Vessel

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Five passenger liners bound for ports in Germany's proclaimed war zone were included in today's sailings from this port. Hundreds of passengers were aboard.

The Lusitania, now the largest as well as the fastest passenger ship traveling the Atlantic, had many cabin passengers booked for Liverpool. The American liner St. Paul for Liverpool, the Holland-American steamer Rotterdam for Rotterdam, the Touraine for Havre, and the Kristianiafjord for Bergen were the other sailings.

American flags and the words "American line" in letters four feet high were painted on both sides of the St. Paul's hull. Two more American flags were painted on her bows. The Rotterdam was marked by lettering on her hull giving her name and destination.

Another British Merchant Ship Reported Torpedoed

(By Associated Press.)

DIEPPE, France, Feb. 27.—(Via Paris.)—It is reported here that a British steamship has been sunk in the English Channel, off Saint Valery-Sur-Somme. A French torpedo boat destroyer has gone from Dieppe to the assistance of the British ship.

Allies of England Do Not Favor U. S. Proposal, Belief

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—An indication of the British government's attitude towards the American government's informal proposals to Great Britain and Germany for the removal of dangers to neutral shipping in Britain's opinion, would be forthcoming today. At any rate, an answer is expected in a few days. The German government's attitude on the issue is already known to be favorable to making concessions and as supplying the basis for negotiations between the nations involved.

Officials here learned today through unofficial sources that some British cabinet members take the attitude that reprisals will be necessary in retaliation for Germany's submarine campaign. England, it is said, is willing to confer and Russia, which have been considering the American proposals were said to be in full accord with her as to what steps she would take.

The Washington government believes that even though the proposals are not accepted, its efforts will not be wasted, since it will demonstrate to the belligerents the sincerity of the purpose of the United States and the impartiality of its position.

U. S. to Stand Pat Against The Detention of Ships

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Behind the federal grand jury investigation in progress here to determine if there has been a systematic violation of American neutrality and customs laws, there was said today to lie a determination by the United States government to make effective its demands for the detention of any American vessel by a belligerent power on a suspicion that contraband is in the cargo.

It was explained unofficially that the government's position in the matter of preserving neutrality would be made more secure in the event of foreign nations by establishing a policy of prosecuting attempts at such violations, since such prosecutions would be effective, as was pointed out, serve to place guarantees upon American cargoes that they were not contraband. The documents in possession of the jury contained proof that the Hamburg-American Steamship line had attempted to use Norwegian merchant ships as substitutes for the German navy and in this manner supply coal, water and foodstuffs to German war vessels in the Atlantic which have escaped capture.

Misstatements in clearance papers as to ports of destination and false statements in manifests as to the contents of cargoes are alleged, and the investigation of the charges is being conducted, it is understood, on the theory that such false statements constitute a conspiracy against the United States government.

Complaints are said to have been received by the federal authorities that scores of tramp steamers have sailed with contraband cargoes after making illegal manifests and untrue statements as to destinations. Sailings from other Atlantic ports than New York are included within the scope of the inquiry.

French Press Opposed to Accepting U. S. Proposals

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, Feb. 27.—The French press is unanimous in declaring Great Britain cannot accept the informal proposals said to have been made by the United States that the embargo on food stuffs for Germany be raised provided Germany abandons her intention of destroying merchant ships. The papers express appreciation of the spirit in which the proposals were made.

FRANK CASE DECISION IS NOT EXPECTED SOON

U. S. Court May Not Announce Ruling for Month or More

It is expected that at least a month and maybe longer will elapse before the United States supreme court hands down its decision on the habeas corpus case of Leo M. Frank.

Arguments before the court were concluded shortly after 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. Solicitor Dorsey, who followed Attorney General Grice for the state of Georgia, was the last speaker. When he finished, Attorney Louis Marshall, of New York, who presented the arguments for Frank and who was the first speaker to be heard by the court, sought to reply briefly to Solicitor Dorsey and Attorney General Grice, but Chief Justice White declared the case ended and adjourned court until Monday at noon.

Mr. Grice and Mr. Dorsey are expected to arrive in Atlanta Saturday.

Should the supreme court sustain Judge W. T. Newman, of the federal court for the Northern district of Georgia, in refusing the writ of habeas corpus, Frank will be resentenced and another date fixed for his execution. His only hope of escaping the death sentence then would be in a commutation by the governor.

If the supreme court, however, reverses the ruling of Judge Newman, counsel for Frank and the state told the federal supreme court, the case would go back to the district court for the taking of evidence on which the allegations for the writ of habeas corpus were based.

Frank's attorneys contended to the United States supreme court that should the writ of habeas corpus be granted their client he could again be tried under pending indictments, which, it is said, the solicitor's office is prepared to bring against him. This assertion was questioned by the state's counsel although they did not take the positive position that Frank could not again be brought to trial on a new indictment.

PAVING OF S. PRYOR NOW UP TO COUNCIL

Work on the repavement of South Pryor street with brick from Georgia avenue to Vassar street will begin at once if a resolution indorsed by the street committee Friday is passed by council Monday.

The resolution provides that $16,000 be paid over to the county, which then will buy the material and do the work. This marks a new procedure in the cooperation of the city and the county on street work. In the past the city has furnished the materials, the county doing the work. The commissioners this year, however, requested that the city make certain payments and leave the purchase of materials in the hands of the county.

Representatives of the Second ward declare that when the resolution passes council that work will be immediately commenced on the thoroughfare.

ARMY MEN MUST NOT PUBLICY DISCUSS WAR

Officers Warned Against Talking About Situation at Home or Abroad

Officers of the regular army stationed in Atlanta and elsewhere throughout the country have been formally warned by the secretary of war that they must not under any circumstances discuss for publication either the military situation in the United States or abroad.

This order, which was mailed out from Washington on last Tuesday by Chief of Staff Brigadier General H. L. Scott, is supposed to be the result of recent interviews attributed to army men, in which they are quoted as commenting on the alleged unpreparedness of the United States for war.

The order, which it is also said is in the interest of this country's neutrality, is as follows:

"Officers of the army will refrain, until further orders, from giving out for publication any interview, statement, discussion, or article on the military situation in the United States or abroad, as any expression of their views on this subject at present is prejudicial to the best interests of the service."

GERMAN SOLDIER GIVEN DEATH FOR PILLAGING

Man Tried Before French Court Denied He Killed Wounded

(By Associated Press.)

RENNES, France, Feb. 27.—Carl Vogelgesang, a German soldier of the Twenty-sixth Saxon infantry, has been sentenced to death here by a French courtmartial, which found him guilty of pillaging while under arms, of arson and of disarming French wounded. Among evidence against him was his own diary, found on his person when he was made prisoner last September.

Vogelgesang denied he had killed wounded men, but admitted the other charges, and declared he was acting under orders.

S. AMERICAN JURISTS TO STUDY U. S. LAWS

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The executive committee of the American Bar association has reported favorably on the plan, broached at its dinner in Washington six weeks ago, to invite three leading South American jurists to this country at the expense of the association, to study American legal and penal institutions and to deliver addresses.

Three men will be selected by the diplomatic representatives of the South American republics. Their first addresses will be delivered at the meeting of the association in the west, after which they will visit the chief cities of the country.

Judge Alton B. Parker, in speaking of the plan, said the South American jurists and ambassadors thought it would promote good feeling and might readily result in material advantage.

ATLANTA ATHLETIC CLUB WILL REMAIN INTACT

Asa Candler, Jr., Agrees to Finance Institution Until Present Crisis Is Passed

The report of a ways and means committee recommending that the Atlanta Athletic club separate into two clubs, one club taking the town house on Auburn avenue and the other club taking the golf course and new country club house at East Lake, was rejected by the members of the club at a largely attended meeting Friday night, after two hours of discussion Asa G. Candler, Jr., came to the club's rescue with an offer to finance it through its difficulties.

The ways and means committee submitted figures intended to show that the club as now constituted could not hope to meet its obligations and that the only solution lay in a separation.

The members of the committee joining in this report were H. M. Atkinson, J. Carroll Payne, Marion Smith, George Adair, Lee Jordan, W. J. Wilson and J. H. Porter.

The figures failed to convince the members that the club's financial situation was such as to force a separation. A number of speeches were made in opposition to the separation plan, and were received with cheers and applause.

Then J. W. Bachman, a member of the ways and means committee who joined with A. Doonan, also a member of the committee, in filing a minority report opposing separation, rose in response to loud calls for a speech, and, after submitting figures of his own to show that only about $20,000 was needed to tide the club over, issued a stirring call to the members to rally and raise this amount.

CANDLER MAKES PROPOSAL.

As Mr. Bachman closed amid prolonged applause, Asa G. Candler, Jr., was on his feet.

"I am in hearty accord with Mr. Bachman," he said. "I do not want to see the Athletic club separate. I believe the club if carefully and economically managed can pay all running taxes, interest and sinking fund, and still have a profit sufficient, in a reasonable time, to cover this $20,000. Therefore, I will personally guarantee to finance the club through its present situation provided the management is reorganized and all the affairs of the club placed in the hands of a board of five, which shall supervise all purchases and audit all bills before payment, three members of this board to be elected by the membership at large, these three then to elect two other members of the club, and the five of them to elect one of their number president of the club."

There was a breathless pause, then a tumultuous outbreak of applause and cheers.

When it subsided, J. H. Porter, president of the club, said Mr. Candler's plan of reorganization would necessitate a change in the by-laws, and that if agreeable he would call a meeting of the members of the club on the night of Monday, March 8, for the purpose of submitting this change to be voted on. This gutted the members perfectly, and the meeting then adjourned with everybody happy and Mr. Candler was showered with congratulations.

JAP WARSHIPS SEARCHING FOR 2 GERMAN CRUISERS

Five Battleships Are Guarding South Pacific Lanes of Travel

(By Associated Press.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—A report of five Japanese cruisers guarding south Pacific lanes of travel and looking for the German cruisers Dresden and Prince Eitel Frederick, has been brought here by Captain William Stevens of the British steamer Maitai, which arrived yesterday from Sydney, Australia.

Captain Stevens said he had been in communication with several of the Japanese warships while in the south seas and that he had been told by radio to have no fears for the safety of the Maitai, as the cruisers were within easy steaming distance.

At Tahiti, Captain Stevens said he had learned that the Japanese cruisers made frequent calls at the French society islands.

The cruiser Dresden was the sole German survivor of the naval battle fought off the Falkland islands with English ships. The Prince Eitel has been variously reported on the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

BRITONS REFUSE TO FIGHT UNTIL THEY HOLD PRAYER

Educator Says War Brings on National Religious Regeneration

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—National religious regeneration is in progress in England and the British spirit has seized the British army, according to F. Herbert Stead, of Browning Hall, London, who arrived here last night a passenger on the steamship Baltic. Mr. Stead, a brother of the late W. T. Stead, the noted British journalist, is in this country as minister-in-residence at Auburn Theological seminary at Auburn, N. Y., and will preach tomorrow at Cornell University.

"The result of this war from the religious point of view," said Mr. Stead, "promises to be a real national regeneration. The British army, particularly the new army being organized by Lord Kitchener, is now filled with the purest spirit as an army has ever been since Cromwell's time. A common expression, even of the old standing army, is that now seven soldiers have become religious.'

"Rarely do the men go into the trenches until they have offered prayer. I heard of several different companies that would not go into battle until after prayer, the men even insisting on their colonel leading them in prayer."

G. W. AYLIFFE, THEATRICAL CRITIC, DIES IN LONDON

LONDON, Tuesday, Feb. 16.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—George William Ayliffe, well known theatrical critic, is dead at his home on the Thames, aged ninety years.

As a boy Ayliffe was a great favorite of King William IV. In the late sixties he joined the staff of a theatrical paper, and through this connection became a close friends of Charles Dickens.

WILSON WILL NOT CALL EXTRA SESSION, BELIEF

Prospects for Passage of Ship Purchase Bill Are Not Bright

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—President Wilson virtually has decided not to call a special session of the senate to consider the Colombian and Nicaraguan treaties. At the White House today it was said that while the question still was under consideration there was little prospects of a special session.

The opposition of some Republican senators makes it improbable that any action on the treaties can be taken during the present session. The president expects, however, that at least some of his nominees for federal judgeships vacancies will be confirmed before March 4. Any not confirmed are expected to get recess appointments.

The Democratic leaders hope to take up some general legislation including the Philippine, the geneva dam, the ship purchase bills, but prospects for passage of these measures are not bright. Although conferees on the shipping bill have agreed to a report the Republicans are expected to continue their opposition to the measure.

The senate and house banking committees today began to consider the situation arising from the incorporation by the senate of the McCumber rural credits bill in the agricultural appropriation bill. It was believed the Democrats would substitute for the McCumber bill the Hollis bill, regarded as an administration bill.

Debate was resumed in the senate on the conference report on the seamen's bill, while the house considered the general deficiency bill.

PLAN ANOTHER ATTACK ON TRADE OF GERMANY

British and French Merchants Will Make Visit to Latin-America

LONDON, Feb. 16.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Another attack on German trade by British and French merchants is about to be made through a business men's voyage to South America. A French liner, renamed the Argonaut, will sail from Southampton on March 4, not yet announced for reasons of caution, bearing fifty French merchants representing the silk, cotton, wine and other industries of France and a hundred leading business men from Great Britain's manufacturing districts.

Caracas, Venezuela, will be the first port of call. Bahia, Rio Janeiro, Santos, Buenos Aires and Montevideo on the Atlantic side and Valparaiso, Antofagasta and Lima on the Pacific side also will be visited. Then, passing through the Panama canal, the expedition will turn homeward.

Various chambers of commerce and municipalities are arranging public receptions for the visitors, and the trade exhibit on the ship will be open to the public in the ports visited. The voyage will last three months and be supported by the business interests of the two countries.

A similar commercial tour may be arranged later for Russia.

President of Brotherhood Guest of Honor at Meeting of Three Lodges

W. G. Lee, of Cleveland, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, was the guest of honor at a meeting of the three Atlanta lodges of the organization, Nos. 292, 720 and 856, held Friday afternoon in the convention hall of the Piedmont hotel.

The same afternoon Mrs. J. H. Hamilton, 61 Park avenue, entertained the ladies' auxiliary of the organization in honor of Mrs. Ada Marshall, of Philadelphia.

President Lee is en route to Texas to attend a joint meeting of several railroad organizations. Mrs. Marshall came to Atlanta especially to attend the meeting.

EXPLAINS ACTION ON SECURITIES PRICES

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, via London, Feb. 27.—Explanatory details have been issued regarding the Bundesrath's prohibition of the publication of securities prices. The order was designed, it is explained, to check unwholesome speculation and was not due in any sense to unsatisfactory market prices, which are said to compare very favorably with foreign paper. Foreign securities quotations may still be printed.

HUNDREDS GIVE HAND TO REVIVAL LEADERS

Alexander Has Newsboys Sing for New Hats--Converts' Room Filled

More than 200 persons, half of them little newsboys, held under the spell of Charles M. Alexander's inspiring song-leading, marched down the sawdust-covered aisles at the Chapman-Alexander revival Friday night and were led back into the "converts' room" to hear a private talk by the revivalist. It was the largest number gathered in that room since the series of meetings began.

The evening service was marked by an extraordinary demonstration of Mr. Alexander's influence over an audience. In the central section, close to the front, were seated more than 100 newsboys, especially invited and brought to the tabernacle in a body. To these Mr. Alexander addressed his appeal.

Cards bearing the words of a song "Standing for Jesus, the Newsboys' Friend" were distributed among the boys. Mr. Alexander had Albert Brown, the revival soloist, sing the chorus, and then called on the newsies. The response was a bit timid, and the leader asked that it be repeated. This time the boys sang with more confidence.

"Now, what boy will stand up and sing it alone?" asked Mr. Alexander. "Guess what I'll give him?"

"A dope! A dope!" cried a dozen boys. Mr. Alexander seemed amused.

"No, a hat," he explained. At this several boys climbed onto the benches.

"That just means three hats," said Mr. Alexander. The volunteers grew under this offer, and finally seven of the newsboys were placed on the high pulpit beside the leader, and sang.

"Seven hats would break me," said Mr. Alexander. "Who'll pay for some of them?" There were several volunteers, and when the singer called on Dr. H. M. DuBose to pay for one hat the well-known pastor readily agreed. The newsboys sang the chorus again, and then, inspired by the promise of a Testament beside the hat, Bailey Lovinger, a youngster unafraid, stepped to the front of the platform and sang it alone. A secretary took down the names and addresses of the boys.

Mr. Alexander's magnetism had drawn the newsboys into one rapt, enthusiastic mass. Then Dr. Chapman began his sermon, directing a large part of his appeal to the boys, and at the end urging them to come up and take Jesus. They rose almost as one, flowed into the aisles and marched into the "converts' room," their faces shining with delight. It reminded one of that historic Children's Crusade, when a Middle Age evangelist led thousands of boys and girls against the Saracens.

Dr. Chapman began his sermon by reading a note: "In the name of Jesus, pray for fifty college men, who have asked to be prayed for tonight." He then urged that the offering be made a gethsemane, and announced the third of a series of three sermons, "What God Does With Our Sins." He took his text from Ezekiel 33:16: "None of his sins which he hath committed shall be mentioned unto him."

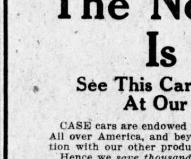
The sermon was one of the most interesting and powerful of the meetings. Dr. Chapman dwelled upon the forgiveness of sins by the Lord, quoting many texts to show that men who have accepted forgiveness. Reading this text from Micah, "He will turn again; He will have compassion upon us; He will subdue our iniquities; and Thou wilt cast all their sins into the depths of the sea," he said.

"Surely this must mean that God has cast our sins where they can never be found, for there are some depths in the sea which cannot be measured. I am quite sure that we should rejoice today did we realize how completely God has set us free from past sins, and how impossible it is for sins forgiven ever to face us again."

There followed the invitation to come forward, and the largest response of the revival answered it.

Dr. Chapman said no services would be held today, but announced the following services for Sunday: 11 a. m., for men only; 3 p. m., meeting for everybody; 7:30 p. m., meeting for everybody.

Sister: Read My Free Offer!



I am a woman.
I know a woman's trials.
I know her need of sympathy and help.

If you, my sister, are suffering because of ill-health, if you feel unfit for household duties, social pleasures, or daily employment, write and tell me just how you suffer, and see if my free home treatment will not be the treatment suited to your needs. Men cannot understand women's suffering. Only a woman knows from experience, we know better than any man. I want to tell you how to cure yourself at home at a cost of about 12 cents a week.

If you suffer from women's peculiar ailments causing pain in the head, back, or bowels, feeling of weight and dragging down sensation, falling or displacement of pelvic organs, cause kidney and bladder weakness or constipation and piles, painful or irregular periods, catarrhal conditions and discharges, extreme nervousness, depressed spirits, backache, desire to cry, fear of something evil about to happen, creeping feeling along the spine, sparks before the eyes, dizziness, sallow complexion with dark circles under the eyes, pain in the left breast or a general feeling that life is not worth living.

I INVITE YOU TO SEND TODAY FOR MY FREE TEN DAYS' TREATMENT

and learn how these ailments can be easily and surely conquered at home without the dangers and expense of an operation. When you are cured, and able to enjoy life again, you can pass the good word along to some other sufferer. My home treatment is for young or old. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain how to overcome green sickness (chlorosis), irregularities, headaches, and lassitude in young women and restore them to plumpness and health. Tell me if you are worried about your daughter. Remember it costs you nothing to give my home treatment a ten days' trial, and almost invariably does the work. If health is worth asking for, then a woman who suffers as I have suffered owes it to her friends to write for the free treatment, including my illustrated booklet, "Women's Own Medical Adviser." I will send all in plain wrappers, postpaid. To save time, you can cut out this offer, mark your feelings, and return to me. Send today, as you may not see this offer again. Address,

FOUR THOUSAND GERMAN TEACHERS NOW IN ARMY

Nearly Half of High School Students Also Shoulder Rifle

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—(By Wireless to London.)—The budget committee announces that out of 11,600 male high school teachers in Germany 4,000 are serving in the army. Nearly half the high school pupils over seventeen have entered the military service.

DREADFUL PAINS GREAT SUFFERING

Was the Lot of This Lady Who Tells The Story of How She Recovered Her Health

Dallas, N. C.—Mrs. Thomas Davis, of this place, says: "About two years ago, when I was eighteen years old, I was in a bad condition from womanly troubles. I fell off until I weighed not more than 85 lbs.

I suffered dreadful pains in my hips, sides and abdomen, for about 5 days out of every month.

I couldn't sleep at night, and the pains were so dreadful I couldn't lie down for the blood would seem to rush to my head.

I felt I must have some relief, for it seemed that the awful suffering would surely kill me.

I had read of what Cardui had done for others, and thought I would try it. After the use of one bottle, the pains had entirely stopped and I was able to sleep.

After using four bottles, I was a well woman, I was regular, I got back my flesh, and I now weigh 126 lbs., and am able to do all my work without any trouble.

I certainly recommend Cardui to suffering women, for I know it cured me.

My friends who saw me when I weighed 85 pounds and would see me now, would know what Cardui had done for me."

Try Cardui.—(Advt.)

GENERALS DIRECT WAR FAR FROM BATTLE LINE

Day When Commander Shared Danger With His Men Has Passed

THE HAGUE, Feb. 16.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The favorite theme of war artists—depicting a general surrounded by staff officers fearful for his safety, while he watches through his field glasses from some eminence within the zone of fire the fluctuating fortune of his army—has become obsolete as far as the German army of the east is concerned.

Thirty miles from the firing line along the far extended eastern battle front the various staffs sit at their desks surrounded by topographical maps and photographs giving the most minute features of the country where the fighting is under way.

When a line officer arrives at a staff headquarters from the actual front these maps are supplemented by his reports and the latest photographs of the enemy's lines taken from an aeroplane. When he returns he takes with him exact orders for the next movement of the units directed by this particular staff. The brains of the army are thus kept far from any danger even of shell fire and the only thing that makes the work of the staff any more dangerous than the deliberations of a war college during peace times is the remote possibility of becoming the target of a raiding aeroplane.

This machine like efficiency directing the actual fighting of the German army is duplicated in the organization of the rear guard communications. Already two permanent railroads have been built in Poland by the Germans, one to Lodz and the other down the bank of the Vistula as far as the German lines have been pushed. A through train daily is now run between Lodz and Mons, thus connecting the most distant points in the east and west now under occupation by German armies of invasion.

BRITISH AND GERMANS ARE WORKING FOR TRADE

Competition for Business in Latin-America Is Keen, Says Albert Hale

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Despite war in Europe, British and German trade representatives keep hard at work in Latin-America, according to Albert Hale, American commercial attache at Buenos Aires. "A man of a great deal of experience in South America," Mr. Hale wrote, "told me the business men of the United States were making a mistake in refusing to send traveling men into this territory.

"He assures me the English have about five men now to three a year ago soliciting orders for any kind of future delivery, as they are determined not to let the market slip away from them. He said that even some German houses were keeping their men active here, although no one could tell when they would be able to fill their orders. This may be mere gossip, but it indicates how eager European manufacturers are to keep the field well studied."

STRAP-HANGER MAY BE SAVED ON HEALTH PLEA

New York Makes New Move Against Over-Crowded Cars

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Relief for the New York strap-hanger may come from an unexpected source—the health department. Dr. S. S. Goldwater, commissioner of health, with the approval of Mayor Mitchel, has undertaken to relieve crowded conditions on cars on the ground that permitting passengers to be herded together is a menace to health. Dr. Goldwater has served mandatory orders upon the New York Railways company and the Belt Line Railway corporation to stop over-crowding on the Eighty-sixth and Fifty-ninth street cross-town lines.

The commissioner indicated today that if this campaign is successful it will be extended to relieve conditions on all the transit lines in the city, including the elevated and subway systems.

Mayor Mitchel in a letter to Commissioner Goldwater has urged prompt action, declaring he believed the courts would sustain the plan "to obtain relief from the present notorious and intolerable conditions which offend not only against health but against decency."

The Germans attack, but the Rt... repulse—according to retrograd.

Even if an embargo is put on wheat, we might ship Georgia corn meal abroad.

How can the war interest us, when there is always some sort of local war going on in Atlanta?

It is no time for rancor and ill will. Let us all get together in time for the opening of the baseball season.

Hanging by a Thread.

Italy so far has remained neutral in the world's greatest war, but interestingly enough she has spent nearly four hundred million dollars in war preparation. Her army is mobilized, her navy is ready, her people are tense with expectation. Her neutrality is a slender thread from which a heavy sword is swaying.

A few days ago it was announced in Berlin that the German Chancellor had gone to Austrian headquarters "for the purpose of discussing with officials of the Dual Monarchy the most important question pending between the Triple Alliance Powers." That "most important question," it is generally understood, had to do with a proposed cession of territory by Austria to Italy as the price of Italy's continued neutrality. The details and results of the conference have not been made public; but recent dispatches from Rome declare: "A sudden change of feeling is noticeable in diplomatic quarters here, regarding Italy's attitude which seems to have become a matter of much greater concern than hitherto."

The inference is that Austria has not seen fit to give up territory as a preventive against Italy joining the Allies, and that the sword is pulling more violently than ever against its slender thread. Germany is said to have urged Austria to restore to Italy the province of Trent and a part of the Istria peninsula; and the German ambassador to Rome is reported to have said that Austria must be induced to yield to this important demand, or he would resign. Apparently the situation is approaching a crisis, in which Italy's course in the present war will be determined.

Of Italy's long standing suspicion and dislike of Austria, a recent historian has said:

"The head of the Adriatic is a constant source of enmity between Italy and Austria. In Trieste and Fiume, seaports of Austria, the population is chiefly Italian. Italy has long coveted not only those ports but the Albanian shore of the Adriatic as well. She has looked with suspicion upon the German-Austrian attempts to dominate the Balkans. Early in the Italian-Turkish war, Italy began to bombard the Albanian coast, then held by Turkey. She was immediately warned off by Austrian. This added fresh vigor to the old antipathy. When the question of renewing the Triple Alliance (between Germany, Austria and Italy), it was with great difficulty that Germany succeeded in getting Italy to join again, even though it was only a defensive alliance, and did not include the Mediterranean."

The war persistently refuses to become an inside page affair.

The attitude of the United States is that the role of innocent bystander is being overdone.

Now that archery has been revived, we can see no obstacle in the way of forming a croquet league.

Ex-President Taft advises the country to stand by the president. Which is a good deal better than continually reviewing the case of the Panama Canal.

Too Much of a Good Thing.

Letters to General Von Hindenburg from admirers throughout the Fatherland have become so overwhelming that the Saxon Minister of the Interior has issued an emphatic protest. "Purposeless writing to the eastern headquarters," he says, "seems to have grown into a sort of sport. No one, of course, will object to these letters when, in exceptional cases or upon especially great occasions, a message of loyalty is sent to the great Field Marshal. But for a tableful of beer drinkers to write him that they have just drunk a round to his health, or for a bowling club to notify him that it has solemnly voted to buy his picture, is inconsiderate."

Such are the penalties of fame. The hero of the eastern war could regard his worshipers complacently enough as long as they limited themselves to naming babies and cigars in his honor, but when they took to writing letters, thousands and tens of thousands of letters into which they poured every drop of their patriotism, the general and his staff cried out for surcease.

Navigation these days is a mining venture, pure and simple.

This war has also developed a lot of note writers on both sides of the water.

Even the pessimist should be cheered by the thought that spring is only three weeks off.

Austria's Food Shortage and Germany's Food War.

Following Germany's example, the Austrian government has determined to take over all stocks of barley, maize and flour products, and to distribute such supplies on a basis of strict economy. The food problem evidently is growing more serious in both the Teutonic empires. In parts of Austria the price of bread has become well-night prohibitive for the poorer class of people, and in some instances has aroused popular outbreaks.

Such conditions are more ominous in the Dual Monarchy than in Germany; for, in the former the population is a mixture of races and tribes lacking that sense of common origin and interest which welds the Kaiser's subjects into a patriotic whole. The people of Germany will suffer any privation and make any sacrifice which the fortunes of the Fatherland require, but not all the people of Austria-Hungary can be relied upon to do so. Many of the latter, indeed nearly half of them, are of Slavonic lineage, and the units of the empire are but loosely joined. It has long been predicted that upon the death of Francis Joseph, now in his eighty-fifth year, Austria-Hungary would burst into revolution. Hungry multitudes are tinder for such fire.

The course of the German government in taking charge of food stocks prompted the Allies to tighten their restrictions upon import to that country, their contention being that when food imports became the property of the government rather than of the individual merchant or consumer they then became, in effect, materials of war and as such were subject to seizure by the enemy. From this situation sprang the present submarine war and those grave issues which are distressing the commerce of the world.

Whether in the long run Germany will gain or lose by its policy in this regard, is uncertain; but for the moment, its supply of provisions from neutral countries is more than ever limited, and its need of frugality more pronounced. A dispatch from Berlin quotes a leading publicist as demanding that the Government take over the supply of potatoes, as it has done in the case of flour and grain. The dispatch adds: "He refers to the advice given to Germans that each person, in order to eke out the supply of grain, should increase his consumption for potatoes by four hundred grams daily; and he says that even if the advice is followed, the present potato supply would not last more than four months."

In these circumstances, it is not surprising that Germany strains every sinew to defeat the enemy's effort to reduce her already dwindling store of food; nor is it surprising that the Allies are bent upon making the most of the weapon of starvation. This may not be humane, but it is war. Destruction of merchant ships by mines and submarines, and efforts to starve a nation into surrender are equally deplorable, but they are equally characteristic of the spirit of this war.

Don't worry. The song of the lawn mower will soon be heard in the suburbs.

Increasing Our Submarines.

To the naval appropriation bill as it passed the House, the Senate has added a provision for five sea-going submarines instead of one, and for sixteen instead of eleven coast-defense submarines. In view of the demonstrated power of this type of war craft, the increases seem justified. The United States should not be excited by the Old World war to hasty or extravagant action, but it should take due measures, now as at all times, for adequate defense.

That the Senate was unswayed by feelings of jingoism or alarm is evidenced by its cool rejection of such proposals as that of Senator Smoot, who clamored for fifty sea-going and twenty-five coast submarines. Congress has shown prudence and conservatism in dealing with the matter of naval appropriations. It has avoided the extreme of those who bluster for vast armaments and the extreme of those who would neglect entirely the needs of national defense. It is especially gratifying that the Senate has concurred with the House in providing for two new battleships.

We are in favor of a special commission whose business it shall be to decide all local controversies before they get to the public.

The sport man makes the better fighter, says Dr. M. S. Pembrey, lecturer on physiology at Guy's Hospital, in a discussion before the Royal Sanitary Institute. This he bases on a careful study of the fighting capacity of tall and short races, and also of the tall men and short men of the same race. The difference in height between a short man and a tall man, said Dr. Pembrey, is due chiefly to the length of leg. At the same time, height depends upon the correlated activity of certain glands which produce internal secretions. The essential organs in the head and trunk are often better developed in the short man than in the tall man, the weight of brain being relatively greater in the short man and the reaction time not so long. Tall men of full proportions are heavy and slow, and there are strong physiological reasons for the greater activity of the small man, who does not suffer from the mechanical disadvantages of height and weight. Therefore, the small man has a greater capacity for work and more endurance, and is better able to resist disease.

Doctor.—"Not so sick, my lord, as she is troubled with thick coming fancies that keep her from her rest."
Macbeth.—"Cure her of that.
Canst thou minister to a mind diseas'd,
Pluck from the memory a rooted sorrow,

Eyesight in Warfare.

Among the causes for which volunteers are rejected in England and conscripts in the other European countries, defective eyesight stands first as regards numbers, but the New York Medical Journal calls attention to the fact that what may be called efficiency of vision for such purposes as those of war is largely a matter of judgment based on experience.

The man with eyes a good deal below normal, when tested at the recruiting station, may in the field be a better marksman than he who passes the examination successfully, simply because the former, as the result of past training, is able to make a better interpretation of his visual percepts, blurred though they are, than in the man with the clearer sight. Savages are wrongly credited with better eyesight than civilized people. The only basis of the supposed superiority is that in his accustomed haunts the savage can make accurate deductions from many things which the white man sees as well, but sees as without significance.

The Journal also notes that science has done about as much for war in the way of extending vision as in that of facilitating the movements of armies by means of railways and motor-driven vehicles. Modern big guns would be of almost no use against their usually distant targets if the gunners who do the firing had to trust to unassisted eyesight, no matter how good, and did not have the instruments of magnification and precision by which ranges are nowadays determined.

The eyes of country dwellers are better, it seems, than those of city men, the difference presumably being due to habitual looking at things remote as well as near, in the one case, while the urban eye does most of its work on objects near at hand, and so its powers of "accommodation" are weakened. Sailors carry good vision further into old age than any other class, because of their constant practice at all the degrees of visibility.

Next to poor eyesight as a cause for rejecting recruits stands deficiency of height, and here again an arbitrary standard is apparently applied with too much strictness, since it leads to the rejection of many men who in modern conditions would not be more efficient as fighters if a few inches taller—who are appreciably less likely to be hit than they would be if taller.—New York Times.

The Roses of Bulgaria.

A wide stretch of Bulgaria south of the main Balkan range is a region of roses. It stands high above the sea level, and stretches southward to Philippopolis, a distance of sixty miles. From east to west it has a like extension. On all sides it is practically hounded by mountains hills, stupendous rocks, passes, ravines and precipices, with scattered forests of walnut, chestnut and other trees. Altogether it offers a combination of charms the like of which is probably not to be found in Europe, in indeed—the world. Through it meanders the slow Tundja, a tributary of the Maritza, the river that flows past Adrianople. The Tundja has its source in a gorge of the Balkans and flows for more than 170 miles through an almost unbroken succession of defiles, valleys and plains. Roses are everywhere. They have bloomed there for centures, but never so profusely as during the last two centuries. At certain seasons the air is almost oppressive with the scent of countless blossoms. Rose gardens, large and small, lie in all directions, in the plains and valleys and on the hillsides. They present a medley of whites, pink, reds and yellows, imbedded in a mass of many-shaded leaves.

The trees and bushes—many of them brought originally from various parts of the Old World, India and Persia having provided a goodly proportion of them—are thrown together in wild, though happy, confusion. Roses abound, too, in yards and back gardens, on the walls of cottages and outhouses and along paths and roads.

In and around this huge rose garden flourish, in well-nigh tropical luxuriance, yellow gentian, wild lilac of various tints and many other flowers. Among these is the scarlet geranium, the favorite of the Bulgarian peasants. And all this is amid a blueness of sky, a wealth of sunshine and a wonderful purity of atmosphere.—Chambers' Journal.

Quips and Quiddities

The dentist had just moved into a place previously occupied by a baker, when a friend called.

"Why not merely dig off the 'B' and let it go at that?" suggested the friend.

With the last drop of gasoline gone Umson found his machine stalled by the roadside, fully six miles from Struthers, at 3 o'clock in the morning. He was overjoyed when he saw approaching through the darkness the glimmer of a lighted lantern. A low rumble soon gave evidence that the light was attached to a vehicle of some kind, and soon a wagon, drawn by two stout horses, hove into view.

"There's a five spot in it for you if you tow me into town," hailed Umson.

The driver readily consented.

For an hour or more they rode in the approaching dawn.

Just before they reached the village Umson called to the man on the wagon seat:

"Pretty early to be on the road, isn't it?"

"Yes," the driver returned, "but I have to be out early to get all over my route."

While he was handing out the $5 Umson inquired: "What is your business?"

And he nearly dropped in his tracks when the man replied:

"I peddle gasoline in the village."—Judge.

"Bill," the poet gasped, staggering into the friend's room.

"Why, what's wrong?" the friend inquired, starting as he grasped hold of the tottering man.

"Wrong!" the poet muttered. "Ye gods! I wrote a poem about my little boy. I began the first verse with these lines:

"My son! My pigmy counterpart."

"Yes? Yes?"

"The poet drew a long breath as he took a newspaper from his pocket.

"Read!" he blazed suddenly. "See what that criminal compositor did to my opening line."

The friend read aloud:

"My son! my pig, my counterpart!"—National Monthly.

A South African tribe has an effectual method of dealing with bores, which might be adopted by western peoples. This simple tribe considers long speeches injurious both to the orator and his hearers; so to protect both there is an unwritten law that every public orator must stand on one leg only when he is addressing an audience. As soon as he has to place the other leg on the ground his oration is brought to a close.

FEDERAL DETECTIVE BUREAUS

II.—Special Agents of the Department of Justice

By Frederic J. Haskin

THE bureau of investigation is the organization which handles all the detective work of the department of justice. It is the youngest of the detective bureaus of the government, having been in existence but half a dozen years. Yet, despite its youth, it is one of the largest of such agencies in the federal service. The range of its work is greater than of any other. It handles, for intsance, all the investigations of violations of the national banking laws, neutrality cases, fugitive cases, anti-trust cases, bucket shop cases, bankruptcy cases, white slave cases, prosecutions for impersonating an officer, and many others for which specific provision is not made elsewhere.

• • •

The cases upon which these detectives work are more many than those handled by any other such agency. Their investigations lead to the haling into court of the most powerful corporations in the country. They have to do with the relations that exist between one nation and another, and may mean war or peace. The men who carry on this work are a new variety of detective, and much of their work has little of sleuthing in it. Most of them are college graduates and lawyers admitted to the bar. Many are expert accountants. All are men of personality and resource. The nature of their work places many requirements upon them.

• • •

The department of justice, for instance, not long ago suspected that there was a conspiracy in restraint of trade among certain manufacturers of the kind of glass that is used for hot-house roofing. It wanted to ascertain the facts. A special agent was assigned to the case. His first duty was to master the detail of the business he was to investigate. Nurserymen are the chief users of this glass, so he studied the nursery business. He so mastered it that he could "talk shop." He was then able to assume the role of a nurseryman.

• • •

He had also learned who were the dealers in this sort of glass. As a nurseryman who wanted to open up new territory in the large scale, he visited these men. He talked prices and bargained with them. He found that there were certain dealers who had uniform prices. This indicated an understanding among them. He became friendly with some of these dealers. Eventually one of them said that he was unable to make a better price because of an understanding among the dealers. He learned further that a new price might be made in the near future at a meeting to be held. All of the men bound by this understanding. He decided to wait until after this meeting before buying the glass. In the meantime he cultivated the acquaintance of these dealers. He came to know them so well that when he appeared at the time of their meeting, his friends among them asked that he might attend, as he was greatly interested in the result of their action. So he was present and gained information at first hand about the deliberations of these men, and the fixing of a new price. When the meeting was concluded, the minutes were seized and the case was complete. There was no other course open to the dealers but to plead guilty.

• • •

The bureau of investigation has branch offices in most of the larger cities, and the men stationed at these places keep an eye on the classes and interests that might violate federal laws. One of these special agents was breakfasting in a hotel in a western city one morning, and the cashier of one of the biggest banks in the city was eating grape fruit at a nearby table. He squeezed the juice into a spoon, and as he raised it toward his mouth, his hand shook to such an extent that the juice was spilled. Even this the special agent probably would never have noticed, if the cashier had not glanced furtively around to see if anybody had observed his nervousness.

• • •

The bank of which this man was active head was what is known as a "political bank." The cashier was a man high in the counsels of his party, and a bosom friend of a United States senator. The bank's standing was supposed to be of the best, and the reports of the federal bank examiners had been giving it a clean bill. But the special agent knew that the cashier did not dissipate, and he wondered at his nervousness. He decided to investigate.

• • •

A few days later, at his suggestion, the bank examiner for that district dropped into town. He went past the bank and intimated that he would take a look at the books a little later in the day. After this tip to the bank, the special agent watched to see what would happen. Soon a messenger emerged and hurried to a nearby bank. He immediately returned with a package of money. The examiner dropped in upon the bank to which the messenger had gone and casually looked over the day's business. He found that the personal check of the cashier in question had that morning been cashed for a sum near a hundred thousand dollars. This cash had evidently been hurried to the suspected bank, because that institution knew the examiner was in town. It was to hide a shortage.

• • •

The affairs of the bank were then given a most rigid overhauling. It was found that this cashier had been mixed up in unfortunate investments and that he had been using the funds of the bank. He had kept track of the bank examiner, and had so arranged that his books would balance when that official inspected them. There were many ways of doing this. One was to extract leaves from the individual ledgers and represent them to be accounts which were checked out. Another was to "kite" a check with a friendly bank for the shortage when the examiner was expected. The cash so obtained would make the bank appear in shape, and the check would not get back from the clearing house until the examiner had gone, and therefore need not appear as an obligation.

• • •

The paying teller and the bookkeeper knew of the subterfuges of the cashier, but his personality was so dominant that they were forced to connive at them. But, because a special agent had seen the cashier's hand shake at breakfast, the true conditions were discovered and the swindler, who altogether had misappropriated more than a million dollars, went to the penitentiary for fifteen years.

• • •

It was late in 1911 that General Bernardo Reyes attempted to organize, on American soil, a revolution that would overthrow Madero. San Antonio, Texas, is the headquarters of refugee politicians from the sister republic and therefore an important station for the special agents who attempt to prevent violations of neutrality. There was much activity all along the border at this time. The special agents having these matters in charge were particularly busy at El Paso and Laredo.

It was toward the end of December that General Reyes slipped out of San Antonio and across the border. The special agents had all the important men of the junta at El Paso under observation. An excellent piece of work had been done by an American special agent whose mother had been a Mexican, and who was therefore able to pass himself off as a native in Mexico. He had fraternized with the revolutionists and learned all of their secrets. Reyes was to have been joined by the El Paso and Laredo leaders as soon as he crossed the Rio Grande. But as he passed over the river the word went forth. The special agents, with bands of Texas rangers at their backs, began rounding up conspirators along the border. All the leaders were arrested. The rank and file had no one to follow into Mexico. When Reyes got into his country he found himself a leader without a following, a revolution without support. At the little desert town of Linares he gave up his vision and surrendered, a broken-hearted old man.

• • •

Fugitive violators of federal statutes often give the special agents of the department of justice chases that lead them around the world. There was the case of a customs broker in New York, who had defrauded the government of large sums on imports. He was a handsome, upstanding, gray-haired man. He fled, but by shadowing a friend of his, he was located in Montreal. He escaped the special agent and went to London. Here he found that the sleuths were on his trail and he fled to Paris. There his wife was found, but the broker had gone. The special agent on the case offered the woman's servant girl twice the money she was getting to take another job. Then, when the woman went to the employment agency for another servant, a Parisian female detective secured the place. This woman eventually intercepted a letter from the broker. He was in Naples. There the special agent found and recognized him, despite the fact that he was disguised as a red-haired hunch-back. His conviction followed.

THE SKY-WORKER

"FUNNY how the shore blinks out, ain't it?" he bawled at the top of his voice, for the whine of the wind in the lattice-work mast and the roar of it against the oilskins dwarfed a man's voice till nothing but a shout could be heard.

Peters told him in return roars that work remained to be done.

"Wind'll die down in a minute," he said. "And now we're workin' on the signal yard. See this stagin' to starboard? I'm goin' out on it, and when I'm out you hand me this line and I'll show you what to do for the fitting."

"Pretty risky—for you," said Crapsey, with a return of emotion and a half-return of panic: "pretty risky—better wait till the wind cases." And he grew a little white again and half-closed his eyes.

"Pooh!" said Peters, "'Taint nothin'. I've been aloft too much to mind a little wind. Why, a sailor could dance a hornpipe on the royal yard in worse weather than this, an' with the ship rollin' and pitchin'! 'Taint nothin'."

"I know; I've been to sea myself," replied Crapsey, wearily. "But wait a few minutes."

Peters seemed not to hear this last protest. He stepped nonchalantly on the overhanging plank and walked out, balancing himself with his arms, swaying backwards and forwards, smiling, confident. Crapsey watched him and felt sick. But though he half-closed his eyes, he mechanically lifted the half-length of pipe of which Peters had spoken. He supposed he would pass it out to Peters presently, but nevertheless the thought of going to the edge of the platform froze him cold and he shivered and panted, and the perspiration again oozed clammily from his face. Frequently he opened his eyes wide, looked at the seagull, and licked his lips. He looked at the gull because he couldn't bear to look at Peters, who was confidently poised on the edge of the plank. If he did look he felt that he would weep like a woman, and that wouldn't do. So he continued to stare at the gull, and as he looked he heard a sharp flapping, a flapping like clothes on a line. Then Peters cried out in terror. Afterwards—almost instantly—there came a swish which he couldn't interpret; so he took his eyes off the seagull and looked towards where Peters had been. Peters was not there!

Crapsey jumped to his feet, the panic forgotten. He looked over the edge of the platform and saw Peters hanging by both hands to a rope's end that hung from the end of the plank.

Crapsey cast aside his boots and his coat and crawled out on the plank. Now he was unafraid; he knew what to do and fright did not bother him.

"Easy, Peters; easy, boy!" called he. "Hang on: I'll get you all right."

And he was sure he was right. He would get him; and he never even thought of dizziness or faintness or fear. He was too intent on the business in hand for that. Instead of being afraid, he was quiet, eager, and self-reliant. He seemed a person reborn.

"Easy, boy!" he called again; then he stretched himself over the edge of the narrow plank stage, extended one hand, and took Peters' wrist firmly, while with the other hand and his legs he held tight to the plank.

"Easy, boy!" he called gently, and as he spoke he could see the deck far below and hear Peters grasping weakly for breath. Then he heard the seagull croak almost at his ear. He heard and saw those things distinctly, and he remembered them. He was calm, observant and methodical. He spoke again.

"All right, friend; now I'll lift you a little. Hold what you get—there—hold tight! Again, so—again, so." And inch by inch he hauled him up. "Now for the big pull—there; I've got your belt. One two, three!"

Peters rolled, gasping and exhausted, on to the plank. "It's funny," he said hysterically, and with an entire forgetfulness of former weakness, "how I like working aloft."—From the Wide World Magazine for March.

TRAVELETTE

BY HIKSAH.

NO. 146—MIAMI.

The tiny Miami river drops down over the limestone rim of that curious saucer that is call the Everglades and pours its clear, clean waters into the clear, clean waters of Biscayne bay. And here, where there must have been a city of the Seminoles or their ancestors before even Ponce de Leon undertook the first Florida tour, is now a very white and very bright little city that continually strives to keep up its American spirit of hustle under the seductive blandishments of a climate that calls for rest.

The tourist goes out in Biscayne bay in a glass bottomed boat to see the wonders of the deep revealed to him so clearly by those transparent waters. he takes a motor boat and goes up the winding course of the Miami toward the Everglades; he gets off at one place to see an alligator ranch and at another to see where all the tropical fruits he has ever heard of grow together.

But not everything centers in the tourist, for here is where men are spending money and energy in trying to tame the wilderness of the everglades, and here men are making fortunes and losing them, too.

The Everglades are mysterious. They are not a swamp, for the water in the huge limestone saucer is always in motion and is always clear. There are no mosquitoes, it is said, but at Miami, on the rim, there are enough and to spare. The saw grass which grows out of the water is impenetrable, except as there be paths cut by the strange currents, and none but the Seminoles can thread their mazes. The Indians still live there, and while drainage engineer and fruit farm promoter are most bravely attacking the stronghold, many years will pass before the last of the Florida Seminoles are forced to surrender and move into Miami to live with the pale face.

The Searchlight

The gold supply of the world is a matter of vital importance because upon the abundance or scarcity of this metal depend to some extent the prices of all other commodities. It is well known that some economists believe the present world wide high cost of living is due, in the last analysis, almost entirely to over-production of gold.

A steady and uniform supply of gold is of the utmost importance, and the production of this metal has always been more irregular than that of most of the industrial metals. Whenever a new gold field is discovered, there is at first an era of overproduction, while the easily accessible surface deposits are being worked. Then comes a short reaction followed by a gain in production as slower and more expensive underground mining gains headway. Unless new gold fields are discovered before the deeper veins are exhausted, there will be a shortage.

The last two decades have seen a number of great gold fields opened up, and the annual production of gold has steadily increased, until it has outstripped the world's industrial growth. The result has been the cheapening of gold, and the relative increase in the price of all other commodities.

The European war has an interesting relation to the gold question; for the immense issues of fiat or paper money by the belligerent nations will probably at some time require an increased metallic coinage. This increased demand for gold for coinage purposes would naturally tend to reduce the price of all other commodities.

Big League Clubs Starting for Training Camps -- Yankees Leave Tomorrow -- Tigers Now En Route

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The main squad of the New York Americans will leave this city tomorrow by train for the spring training camp at Savannah, Ga. Captain T. L. Houston, part owner and secretary-treasurer of the club; Manager Bill Donovan, Coach Duke Farrell and five players, among them Ray Fisher, veteran pitcher, will be included in the party to start from New York, according to announcement today. They will be joined in Baltimore by Peckinpaugh, Vee, Boone, Maisel and Schwert. The battery men now in training at Hot Springs, Ark.,—Sweeney, Nunamaker, Caldwell, Cole, Keating, Warhop and Brown—will reach Savannah about March 10. The other players will report from their homes.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 27.—Coach Jim McGuire and three members of the Detroit American league baseball club left Detroit this forenoon for the Tigers' training camp at Gulfport, Miss. Players in the party are Catchers McKee and Yelle, and Frank Fuller, a recruit infielder. Several other players will probably join McGuire's band en route.

Manager Hugh Jennings has ordered his untried battery men to report to him at Gulfport before Monday. Jennings has decided to put his pitchers and catchers through a week of conditioning before the veterans report on March 8. Ty Cobb will not join his teammates at Gulfport until March 20. Detroit has disposed of so many players during the past month that the squad will be the smallest which has reported to Manager Jennings at a Detroit training camp.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—When the Apache sailed for Jacksonville, Fla., Friday, she carried a small army of baseball players, representing the Brooklyn and Philadelphia Nationals and the Philadelphia Athletics, in route to their southern training camp. The Athletics will remain at Jacksonville, while the Brooklyns will proceed by rail to Daytona and the Phillies to St. Petersburg.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Eleven members of the Chicago National league club left here last night for Tampa, Fla. Others will meet the train en route or go directly to the training camp where work is to begin March 1.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 27.—Miller J. Huggins, manager of the St. Louis Nationals, accompanied by a dozen players, left last night for Hot Wells, Tex., for the training season.

Portland Sends Kircher Ticket

George Kircher, who expects to hang his hat in some Portland, Ore., boarding house during the next baseball campaign, received this morning the first information toward arrangement which have been made for his reception since the trade involving himself and Roy Moore was put through a short time since. This information came in the form of a notice from a local railroad office that transportation to the Portland club's training camp had been received. George has not yet, however, received a letter from the Portland club advising him just when he will be expected to report.

As yet he does not know just where the club will train. Last season early spring work was done in a little town in southern California, and it is probable that the team will return to that location this season. Kircher expects to make a short visit to his relatives in Louisville before leaving for the coast. He will probably be expected to reach the camp along about March 10.

Strong-Man Davis Boosts His Record

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 27.—George A. Davis, Harvard law school student and pitcher for the Boston Nationals, who set a new strength record at Harvard recently, bettered his mark Friday with 1,593.8 points in a general test. These figures displace his previous mark of 1,437.6 points as the record.

Ouimet Is Rated

BOSTON, Feb. 27.—Francis Ouimet, national amateur golf champion, was given a rating Friday of plus two by the Massachusetts Gold association. It is the first time any American golf association has put a player below the scratch mark.

Ray R. Gordon, of Braeburn, has been placed at scratch.

White Gets Draw

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Feb. 27.—Jack White, of Chicago, and Cleve Atwell, of Brooklyn, fought eight fast rounds to a draw here last night. White is a featherweight and Atwell a lightweight.

THE GOLFER'S REQUIEM.
(By our own R. L. Stevenson.)

Under the wide and starry sky
Dig, the grave and let me lie,
Gladly I've lived and gladly die,
Far from the world of strife.

These be the lines you grave for me,
"Here he lies where he wants to be—
Here he lies by the Nineteenth Tee—
Where he's lied all through his life."

We see where the state legislature of Texas has passed a racing bill, reviving that sport in the Lone Star commonwealth.

The racing game is beginning to edge back in other directions, which shows at what queer angles the pendulum of sport often swings. Some years ago racing was popular and boxing was heavily under the general ban. In Tennessee, for example, no one ever thought that racing would ever be chased out or that boxing would ever be revived. Yet the state legislature attached the can to the so-called Sport of Kings and shortly afterward legalized boxing matches.

Public opinion often rolls up in waves and then recedes in equal bulk. It is hard to say just what the esteemed public wants, for the esteemed public too often doesn't know itself.

HURRY CALL.

Dear sir: I see in your column where Mr. Sewell Ford and Mr. George Ade have organized the Open Ears Co., Ltd., for golfers who desire a Willing Listener. Where can I obtain the services of one of their Gentlemanly Representatives at once? It is most important. Last Monday I went out and—well, I won't take up your space relating what happened, but I must have a Willing Listener immediately, regardless of the cost. My wife has threatened to leave me if I mention what happened again, my friends are avoiding me and the office is in open revolt. I have no one left to discuss that wonderful round with, and yet I can't possibly keep it in my system. So you see what a fix I am in. I simply must have a Willing Listener who is willing to work eight hours a day, furnishing both ears. Please wire the Company at once for further particulars. S. L. H.

Sir: You have probably seen where Harvard just finished cleaning up Yale at hockey. What other games do they play over at New Haven?
HARVARD, '16 (Cambridge, Mass.)

ANOTHER JOY-KILLER.

Dick Rudolph, one of the star slabmen of the Boston Braves, has a bit of good news for the other seven clubs in the National league. "In place of slipping," says Dick, "I figure we will be about 25 per cent better than we were at any time last season. We have not only added a great hitter in Sherry Magee, but in Strand we have another fine pitcher coming on to reinforce the pitching staff. Outside of that we should worry quite a lot."

ONE FOR CUBA.

John J. McGraw has flicked the sun-kissed realm of Cuba as the future winter home of sport. "The time is coming," he says, "when Cuba will be winter headquarters for baseball, golf, racing, prize-fighting, tennis and all the games there are. And this time isn't far away, for Cuba is already proving that for those who like sport there are sufficient attractions to appeal to all comers."

Now if Cuba can only show a number of people how to escape from Winter League baseball dope, with all court proceedings eliminated, the sportive future of the Antillean citadel is more than assured. It will be a riot.

ANOTHER REVISION.

It is easy enough to be pleasant
While coining a word like "merg;"
But the bloke worth while is the one who can smile
When tackling Von Hindenberg.

There may not be room for four big leagues, but the proposition of merging the Feds with the Internationals in the East and with the American association in the West is at least worth a tumble. At the rate many cities are now going it is only a matter of brief time anyway before there will be sufficient fan material to arrange for two extra major league circuits. And even if it doesn't pan out—well, the general situation couldn't be much further south than it is today where headquarters are being established a number of dusty leagues below Cape Horn.

HALF SWINGS.

The gentlemanly debater who can never see the other side of an argument is generally planted on the wrong side himself.

Some philosopher recorded it neatly when he said "that most spills resulted from pulling at the horse just as he was taking the hurdle."

Christy Mathewson must have bumped into the Fountain of Eternal Youth on one of his Florida jaunts. The gag about "feeling younger than ever" is old stuff, but Mathewson is one of the few who can also look it. He is now starting his fifteenth season in the game and veering upon 35 years of age, but no one could make an outsider believe he was over 24. He is undoubtedly the youngest looking middle-aged entry that we know of. Or is 35 middle-aged? If not he is at least the youngest looking 35-year-older either inside or outside the harness of play.

We recall that October day in 1912 when a number of experts stated that Big Six had about rounded out his career as a star. Yet here it is 1915 and McGraw is banking more upon the veteran than any other member of his cast. And he is willing to record a small wager that Matty will put away more victories than any other pitcher on his squad.

We are not overly particular at what we look, but our hazy idea of worse than nothing to gaze on is Jack Johnson meeting Sam McVey or Battling Jim. In the second place, it is entirely too hard on the eyes when the lights get dim.

"Sport of Kings to be revived." Not if Europe can see it first after this present epidemic of the Sport of Kings subsides a bit.

Over in Europe they are looking for "cannon fodder," Over here the hunt seems to be after "fan fodder," with the supply running a bit too low for the health of a number of ambitious leagues who desire to keep the turnstiles set up.

"Jack Curley trusted Jack Johnson fully." Mr. Curley is evidently one of our greatest little trusters. This is close to a world's record.

"Willard-Johnson battle to be postponed." Only think what a terrible blow it would be to the industries and culture of this country if it was postponed indefinitely. The nation would soon be a depressed wreck.

Tickets Sent to Local Players; Report Mar. 10

Eighteen Players Furnished Transportation for Practice Season--Five Men Already on Hand Here--Only a Few Still to Be Signed Up

Railroads and other forms of transportation got their first cut into the Cracker strong box for the 1915 season Friday afternoon, when Manager Bill Smith and the local association dug down into the coffers for transportation to Atlanta of the boys who are to form the battle front of the club during the 1915 season. Eighteen players were mailed to eighteen players. Five others who are expected to be on hand when the gong rings are already here in city. The boys were notified to show up here between the 10th and 15th of March, with the advice that the first exhibition game would be staged on March 22.

The proposition of forwarding transportation to ball players at the beginning of the training season involves no little trouble in digging up their locations, and figuring the cost of freight. Accordingly Secretary A. B. Parker has been busy for two or three days in gathering the information of the whereabouts of Billy Smith's crew this year.

Joe Jenkins, who is counted as a sure thing for a catcher's berth, wandered farther away from the fold than any other member of the outfit. Although Jenkins was born and reared in the heart of middle Tennessee, he has been spending the winter in California. It will require approximately $80 to import Mr. Jenkins into the vicinity of Ponce de Leon. Don Flynn and Bill Rumler run a close race for second place, Rumler is quartered at Milford, Neb., while Flynn is buried away in the secret recesses of the rural retreat of Huckabay, Tex. Huckabay it may be added is fifteen miles from a railroad station.

Following are the players who were furnished transportation, and the places from which they are expected to start: Elliott Dent, Oakley, Md.; James Allen, St. Paul, Ark.; Bill Waldron, Birmingham; L. E. Tullos, Dallas; Ed Manning, Florala, Ala.; Don Flynn, Huckabay, Tex.; Charlie Mitt, Cleveland; N. F. Neiderkorn, Versailles, O.; R. O. Pearson, Grenada, Miss.; Rivington Bisland, New York; Frank Robertson, Norcross; Timon Bowden, Mcdonough; Claude Potts, Vincennes, Ind.; Carl Thompson, Spring City, Tenn.; William Rumler, Milford, Neb.

In addition to the above several of the boys are already on hand. Among these are Roy Moran, Hack Eibel, Frank Browning, O. H. Williams and Coffey, a youngster who will be given a tryout by Manager Smith. Catcher Jarosick, turned over to the club by the Browns, will be turned back, and has not been notified to report. Elmer Lawrence, who is still on the local roster, will either be sold or released outright. He will not be brought here for a further trial.

With a few exceptions the above named players have already signed up. Dent and Bisland, from the old guard, have yet to affix their signatures to a contract, but Manager Smith expects to get them in line when they arrive. Catchers Jenkins and Rumler are yet to be signed also, though both have signified a willingness to tie up. Ed Manning is the only other player yet to be signed and little trouble is anticipated with him.

Fox-Hound Team Wins Dog Race

NOME, Alaska, Feb. 27.—Fred Ayer, driving a team of fourteen fox hounds, finished first late Friday in the sixty-four-mile Solomon derby for dog teams. His time was 6 hours and 32 minutes. Percy Blatchford, driving the Downing-Blatchford team, was second in 6 hours and 38 minutes.

At last reports Leonard Seppala was leading "Scotty" Allan, driving the Allan-Darling team, of Mulamutes, for third place.

Hank O'Day Is Through With Majors

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Henry O'Day, veteran umpire of the National league and last year manager of the Chicago Nationals, is through with the major leagues. Today he advised John K. Tener, president of the National league, that he doesn't want his former position and is anxious to umpire on the Pacific coast.

Nevada Gets Racing

CARSON CITY, Nev. Feb. 27.—Governor Boyle received the pari-mutuel betting bill from the senate Friday and signed it. The bill permits pari-mutuel betting in inclosures of racing associations licensed by the state racing commission. An act creating a state racing commission has been enacted and signed.

Chick Evans Beaten

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 27.—Charles L. Dexter, of Dallas, in an invitation golf tournament here Friday, defeated "Chick" Evans, of Chicago, 3 up, two to play, in the first flight of championship play.

Tales of The News

BY INNIS BROWN

Within its brief career of something more than one year the Federal league has accomplished much. This is intended as no especial boost for the great and benevolent work that the new organization has done for poor downtrodden ball players, nor yet for any exhilarating relief that it has afforded from the nauseating utterances of some of the magnates of the older leagues. It doesn't even mean to say that the new organization has benefitted the game in the least. But it does mean to say that its mere existence has served to rend the fabric of the game as it existed under the old regime quite considerable. Yes sir, quite considerable.

There is no intention of going on here to relate what changes have been wrought in players' contracts, salaries boosted and general reform in the method of handling cowpunchers by the boys in the ranks has been instituted. Just a little observation on the different turns things have taken along a few special lines.

Among other things, consider the matter of unconditional releases. Last season there were few releases of any kind at all by the major leagues of anything that came within twenty blocks of filling a big league uniform. The reason for this situation was very apparent. There was a deadly fear that a rooky who looked like the possibility of a big league player even three years hence was a hurdle to the Feds. In case a move was started to railroad him back to the brush. It was never like that in the good old days.

But about the most popular diversion just now, or at least for the past two or three months has been the practice of handing to the veterans an unconditional passport to nowhere in particular, so long as their names were erased from the club roster. A desire to retrench was of course back of the move primarily. The natural move, therefore in revamping the machine is to replace and dispose of worn parts here and there. This means sending the vets on to other pastures.

But in many cases these vets were drawing nice fat salaries. Hence when a plan was projected to shift them to another big league club, the rival pilot very promptly recoiled with an exclamation of "nothing doing too much money for that old stretch of ruin." Then a scheme of slipping the old scout back down the line to where he got his start, said vet rose up in all the dignity of his pristine glory, and roared. Roared so heroically that that plan also was foiled. Furthermore these old birds are looking for the fat pay envelopes even when they are expected to retreat back to the tall and untried. And where are the minor leagues now who are ready to put up fancy prices for the services of the stars of other days? There ain't no sich animal.

So it is the unconditional release for the old boys in droves. Take a peek at this list. Mike Donlin, Tommy Leach, Germany Schaefer, Bill Sweeney, Hooks Wiltse, Kid Elberfeld, Charlie Smith, Ed Reulbach and a dozen or so more. Heretofore an unconditional release has been the thing most desired by a ball player, when his term of services with a club was ended. But at present, there are drawbacks. The Club owners have come to regard the fact that a man is given his outright release as prima facia evidence that he is through. Hence, they are inclined to look on any application that he may make for a job heretofore, as a bluff. It makes the salary ante steep it is a pretty safe bet that they are going to pass him up. Hence under present circumstances an unconditional release may not work so much to the advantage of the player after all.

Would you be surprised to learn that Christy Mathewson was tricked for more home runs last season than any other hurler in the National league? Well, it was a fact. Big Six was touched up for eighteen perpendicular counters off of the bassocks. Vic Saier nabbed four of them.

Manager Griffith has just grabbed a phenomenal young infielder from Cuba, and a Washington fan arises to inquire just why Johnny McGraw didn't land this fellow if he is so good, since McGraw has been in Cuba for several weeks. Evidently this fan doesn't know that Mac has been golfing. What time has a baseball golfer to spend thinking of baseball?

When Jack Johnson learned that a Mexican chieftain proposed to arrest him and turn him over to the United States authorities on an old indictment he promptly chose to call off the Juarez fight. Jack may have gone back from a pugilistic standpoint, but he can still appreciate the fact that discretion is the better part of valor.

Incidentally the calling off of that Juarez fight was a pity in one way. A bunch of energetic scribes have been busy for the past three or four weeks proving conclusively that Willard would batter the everlasting lights out of the big spade when they got together and now all of their labors have gone for nothing.

Apparently Rabbit Maranville is rather well known up in that expanse of the country known as New England. Not a day passes but that some hamlet sends out press dispatches quoting the Rabbit on some topic. His latest is a firm belief that Bill James will fall in line with the Braves. He also feels no doubt that Christmas will fall on December 25, if he cares to express an opinion of the subject.

A St. Louis scribe cites as the height of humor the battle which Nashville and Louisville are preparing to wage over Infielder Eddie Miller. Just how two teams can work any enthusiasm over a guy who massaged the sphere for a lean average of .198 is a bit past the comprehension of the Mound City scribbler. Does sound funny, doesn't it?

Frank had a very nice boost for Pitcher Williams, who Billy Smith drafted from the Babies. According to Manush, Williams is a rather slow starter, which accounts for the fact that he failed to get going good with Columbus early last season. But once he got up full steam, he was the most valuable flinger in the league according to his manager. He was the big factor in carrying the Albany club home first in the second leg of the race.

McConnell Buys Own Release

The local baseball association has come to terms with Amby McConnell, who played second base for the Crackers the greater part of last season, for the little second sacker's release. Amby purchases his own release outright, and is now free to dicker wherever he pleases for a job during the coming season. It is understood that he expects to land a job as manager of the team at Utica in the New York State league. His home is in that city. Mac attempted to have the Utica club purchase his release, but the owners were averse to spending the coin. He accordingly accepted the local club's terms personally.

Amby will find several other ex-Southern leaguers in the circuit, including two or three former Crackers. Vedder Sitton and Jack Doescher are both there along with big Marty Phelan, a former Macon player, who was given a brief trial here. Others in the league are Bill McGilvray, Baron Kelley, veteran, and George Hunter, who formerly pitched and played the outfield for the Vols under Bill Bernhard.

Kid Nichols to Get Coaching Job

MARSHALL, Mo., Feb. 27.—Charles "Kid" Nichols, who won pennants as a pitcher for Boston and continued winning pennants as manager of the Kansas City Blues of the American association and Omaha of the Western league, has been signed to coach the baseball team of the Missouri Valley college in this city. Nichols will take charge of the team March 15 and will remain with the Valleyites two months, accompanying them on a tour of the collegiate circuit.

Missouri Valley is after the championship this season as a means of reviving athletics at the school, and the management believes that Nichols can turn the trick. Since leaving the St. Louis Cardinals, as manager in 1904, Nichols has been with minor league teams. Nichols, who is now living in Kansas City, is the first ex-star of the big leagues to be engaged by a secondary college of Missouri, and his work will be watched with interest.

Feds Will Open Season April 10

League Proposes Schedule to Include Club at Newark Despite Protest of Kansas City

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 27.—Selection of April 10 as the opening date of the Federal league's playing season, four days in advance of the first games in the organized major baseball leagues, and recommendation by the umpires of minor changes in playing rules, marked the opening sessions of the league's annual schedule meeting here Friday.

Although injunction proceedings instituted at Chicago to prevent the transfer of the Kansas City franchise to Newark prevented formal adoption of a schedule, the magnates went ahead with their work on the basis that Newark would be the eighth team in this year's line up.

Representatives of the Kansas City owners registered at the hotel where the league meetings were held, but did not seek recognition.

"It looks like a pretty favorable sign," said President James A. Gilmore, "when Federal clubs begin fighting for franchises. In fact, Federal affairs all around look mighty good to me for 1915."

New rules recommended by the umpires provide for a fine of $200 and thirty days' suspension for pitchers using the "emery ball" and would rule out of play a ball batted foul that strikes any part of the grandstand or passes into foul territory beyond first or third base, the latter rule being designed to prevent delay.

Marist Quintet Beats Peacock

The Marist basketball five defeated Peacock Friday afternoon by a score of 46 to 20. The tigers battled on fairly equal terms during the first half, the count at the end of that period showing 11 to 9 for Marist. However, the Ivy street boys pulled away rapidly after the start of the second half, and the result was never in doubt, thereafter.

This was a postponed game from earlier in the season. By winning it, Marist pulls up to a tie with Boys' High for third in the city league race. Both teams have won nine and lost one game. No date has as yet been set for a play off on the tie. In Friday's game, the feature of the play was the work of Dodge, who rang up 34 points for the winners.

Class Football At Athens Today

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 27.—The only class game of football to be played at the university will be pulled off this afternoon—a junior time of the year for a pigskin contest—between the freshmen and the sophomores.

The game will be in the nature of a class contest to help take the place of the old class rushes and banquets of years ago which for weeks the two classes were in a constant state of belligerency, and when either attempted to hold the annual banquet the other broke it up or were badly broken up in the attempt. The pushball games were inaugurated to fill the long-felt want of a class scrap, but even that has not sufficed to appease the warlike spirits of the classes of eighteen and nineteen.

Comiskey Convalescent

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago American league club, who was reported seriously ill in San Francisco, expects to be about to leave his bed today, according to word received by Secretary Harridge of the American league. His condition was said to be not alarming as first reported.

ANOTHER SHIPMENT TO SUPPLY DEMAND

Great Distribution Rapidly Taking Up First Allotment, but More on the Way.

Somebody asked, "When is it going to end?"

"Why, it's just begun," is the answer.

Referring, of course, to The Journal's distribution of the greatest Bible ever published. It did look for a while as though some of our readers would have to be disappointed, but additional shipments are now on the way and everybody will be supplied in time.

The Journal recognizes the fact that there are numerous "illustrated" Bibles offered to the public. But they contain merely pictures of Biblical scenes taken at random from various sources and inserted without regard to subjects or chapters. Some New Testament scenes are inserted in the Old Testament and vice versa. Thus they entirely lose their educational value. In this Bible there are more than 600 illustrations printed with the type, so that they make plain the verse which they accompany. Those who are not familiar with the Bible will catch many a new meaning aided by these illustrations. Then this Bible also contains full-page color plates from the wonderful Tissot collection, each of which has been selected with the same object of explaining the accompanying text matter. So with all respect to other Bibles, the fact remains that this is the only really illustrated Bible.

No difference how many other Bibles you may now have, this one explains and makes clear the many subjects illustrated; and even though you may have no religious beliefs, such a work will be found an invaluable aid to education.

In addition to the educational helps, the copious marginal references and the beautiful colored maps, every proper name in this illustrated Bible is separated into syllables and marked for pronunciation, being treated the same as in a dictionary, so that mispronunciation is impossible. This is one of the most important features of this great work and is of immense value to both young and old who find it difficult to pronounce Bible names.

Don't wait, but bring in your certificate and get your Bible. Today's certificate is printed on another page.

Table Talk of Hindenburg

(London Chronicle.)

Fedor von Zobeltitz, a widely known novelist, had been invited by Marshal von Hindenburg to dinner, and in a letter gives some stray hints of the great strategist's table talk.

It was, of course, all about the war. An officer stated that Russian prisoners had Japanese coins in their possession a fact which pointed to the presence of Japanese soldiers in the Russian army.

"Not at all," said Hindenburg, "they stole the coins in the Japanese war, and were only trying to dispose of them in Poland."

The fall of Warsaw was next discussed and the great man had something to say about it: "It will not fall today, nor yet tomorrow, but we shall get through. This is certain."

The conversation turned on the state of the Russian army, and Hindenburg's contribution was as follows:

"The human material of the Russian armies is not inexhaustible. Their roubles are powerless. Their ammunition is being exhausted."

Herr von Zobeltitz states that the New Year's congratulations to this new idol of the nation were so numerous that they had to be delivered in large laundry baskets, and that although the marshal's aides-de-camp were working in a temperature 4 degrees below zero the perspiration ran off their faces, so immense were their efforts to get through the correspondence.

Health "Don'ts" for Winter

(Philadelphia Ledger.)

Look out for pneumonia at this time of year, says the bulletin issued a few days ago by the department of health and charities. The disease claimed 3,060 victims in Philadelphia last year, taking second place among the deadly diseases in the city. But, says Director Ziegler's bulletin, it is easy to resist the harmful effects of the germ so long as we receive an ample supply of pure air and keep our bodily standard up to normal.

Obey the following "don'ts," says the health department, and you need not fear pneumonia:

Don't poison yourself with tainted air by staying in poorly ventilated, overheated, crowded, foul smelling places. Fresh air does not cause pneumonia or any other disease, but is necessary for good health, in winter as well as in summer.

Don't injure your health and lower your vitality by overeating, or excesses of any kind. Good general health, maintained at a high standard by right living, is the best possible safeguard against pneumonia or any other germ disease.

Don't indulge to excess in alcoholic liquors. Those who become addicted to alcohol reduce their resistance to pneumonia and increase the liability of death from it.

Don't sleep with bedroom windows closed. Night air is purer than day air; it contains less dust and fewer germs.

Don't permit direct drafts to blow on you, whether in bed or out.

Don't sit around with wet feet or in wet clothing.

Don't permit anyone who has pneumonia to pass it on to you. Treat pneumonia as a "catching" disease.

THERE are good partnerships, good business chances, good opportunities to secure capital if The Journal Want Columns are used to advantage.

CALOMEL DYNAMITES A SLUGGISH LIVER

Crashes into sour bile, making you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates? It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone, you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; the like it.—(Advt.)

COTTON MARKET STEADY; PRICES SLIGHTLY LOWER

Market in New York Closed 1 Point Up to 4 Points Off From Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—There was light liquidation at the opening of the cotton market today and first prices were about 4 to 5 points net lower. Some of the selling may possibly have been inspired by expectations that cotton would come here more freely from the south on contract delivery when the clearing of timber and status begins within the next few days, but there appeared to be no important change in the general situation and trading was very quiet.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 27.—Contraband of war talk in the morning dispatches caused selling of cotton today in spite of the fact that cables were favorable. Hat an hour after the opening prices were 2 to 5 points off.

The decline was steadied to 6 points on the most active months, but shorts commenced to take profits in volume, showing a decline of seven up over Sunday and the market recovered to the level of yesterday's close. The close was at a net decline of 1 to 2 points.

WEEKLY COTTON REVIEW.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The cotton market has been very nervous during the past week, with prices fluctuating rather more than the general liquidation. Offerings were pretty well taken up on declines, and some to 85 points from the high records of last month and moderate rallies have followed on covering and trade buying. The demand has been quite limited, and the talk around the ring after the close of the business night indicated that sentiment was still very much unsettled.

Part of this nervousness during the week has been attributed to Liverpool buying here to cover contracts and the bulk of the week's business, in fact, has quite generally been regarded as an attempt to cap on accounts, rather than developments.

Appreciations that something might grow out of the naval zone operations to seriously interfere with cotton shipments abroad, or that advantageous cotton transportation rates or at least discourage fresh buying for export account, was the main support during the week, commitments factors for the week, while the volume of business done during the week's business has been restricted also by new contract uncertainties.

Good progress is now being made in clearing up details of contract and it is anticipated that the New York inspection bureau will speedily begin to classify and stained cotton for delivery under the terms of the new rules, while the exchange is now regularly posting daily call values on the different grades.

As soon as southern shippers secure exact information as to conditions favorable here it is predicted that business will broaden somewhat, and that sharp parities between New York and other markets will soon be established.

Meanwhile, little or no southern selling pressure of actual cotton has yet shown itself here, and general sentiment is still waiting for a more settled condition in the shipping situation and also, possibly, for a nearer view of the new crop start.

HANK AND KNOBS---A MATTER OF DEFINITION ---BY FARREN

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET WAS NARROW BUT HIGHER

Beet Sugar, Copper, Smelters, Bethlehem Steel, General Motors and Steel Led

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Advances ranging from fractions to a point were recorded in today's early market dealings. Amalgamated Copper being the strongest of the active group. Trading was light and of the usual week-end character. Interesting an evening up of contracts. New York Central was the only important issue to reflect pressure. Specialties, including the Motor shares, were strong. Willis-Overland gained 3 points. The London market for Americans was dull with mixed gains and losses.

Stock market moved within very narrow limits today, opening with gains in most of the better known issues, but on falling back on profit taking offerings. Traders seemed loath to make new commitments over the week end in view of the foreign situation. Amalgamated Copper was the only speculative leader to make fair marked strength, advancing 1 point. The railroad shares were barely steady, while the trunk line shares sold off fractionally. Specialties furnished the bulk of the session's business output, petroleums showing weakness while motor shares were relatively strong.

The closing was firm.

Bonds were irregular.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

(Copyright, 1915, by J. G. Lloyd.)

Wake up, wake up, you sleepy-head!
It's time that boys were out of bed.

Isn't it queer how hard it seems to be for some boys to go to bed at the proper time, and how much harder it is for them to get up in the morning? It is just so with Farmer Brown's Boy. I suppose he wouldn't be a real live boy if it weren't so. Of course while he was sick with the mumps he didn't have to get up, and while he was getting over the mumps his mother let him sleep as long as he wanted to in the morning. That was very nice, but it made it all the harder to get up when he should after he was well again. In summer it wasn't so bad getting up early, but in winter—well, that was the one thing about winter that Farmer Brown's Boy didn't like.

On this particular morning Farmer Brown had called him and he had replied with a sleepy "All right," and then he had rolled over and promptly gone to sleep again. In two minutes he was dreaming just as if there were no such things as duties to be done. For awhile they were very pleasant dreams, very pleasant indeed. But suddenly they changed. A terrible monster was chasing him. It had great red eyes as big as saucers, and sparks of fire flew from its mouth. It had great claws as big as ice tongs, and it roared like a lion. In his dream Farmer Brown's Boy was running with all his might. Then he tripped and fell, and somehow he couldn't get up again. The terrible monster came nearer and nearer. Farmer Brown's Boy tried to scream and couldn't. He was so frightened that he had lost his voice. The terrible monster was right over him now and reached out one of his huge paws with the great claws. One of them touched him on the cheek and it burned like fire.

With a yell, a real, genuine yell, Farmer Brown's Boy awoke and sprang out of bed. For a minute he couldn't think where he was. Then with a sigh of relief he realized that he was safe in his own snug little room with the first Jolly Sunbeam creeping in at the window to wish him good morning and chide him for being such a lazy fellow. A thump and a scurry of little feet caught his attention and he turned to see a gray squirrel running for the open window. He jumped up on the sill, looked out, and then jumped down inside again and ran over to a corner of the room, where he crouched as if in great fear. It was clear that he had been badly frightened by the yell of Farmer Brown's Boy, and that he was still more frightened by something he had seen when he looked out of the window.

A great light broke over Farmer Brown's Boy. "Happy Jack, you little rascal, I believe you are the terrible monster that scared me so!" he exclaimed. "I believe you were on my bed, and that it was your claws that I felt on my face. But what ails you? You look frightened almost to death."

He went over to the window and looked out. A movement in the big maple tree just outside caught his attention. He saw a long, slim white form dart down the tree and disappear. He knew who it was. It was Shadow the Weasel.

"So that pesky weasel has been after you again, and you came to me for help," said he gently as he coaxed Happy Jack to come to him. "This is the place to come to every time. Poor little chap, you're all of a tremble. I guess I know how you feel when a weasel is after you. I guess you feel just as I felt when I dreamed that that monster was after me. My, you certainly did give me a start when you touched my face!" As he talked he gently stroked Happy Jack, and Happy Jack let him.

"Breakfast!" called a voice from downstairs.

"Coming!" replied Farmer Brown's Boy as he put Happy Jack on the table by a dish of nuts, and began to scramble into his clothes.

There's "Shinner" Nixon

(George Fitch in American Magazine.)

But the career that amuses me most is Jack Nixon—"Shinner" Nixon, we used to call him. He commands a battleship for a living now, and Homeburg is exactly seven miles from the nearest stream that is navigable by a duck. We used to walk out to that stream Saturday mornings, spend four hours building a dam and then swim painfully on our elbows and knees in the puddle we had made until dark, but Shinner wouldn't go in. He was a regular young Goethals when it came to dam building, but he abhorred water, especially behind the ears.

Why Frenchmen Are Small

(Dr. C. W. Saleeby in the Youth's Companion.)

If a conqueror wants tall men to fight for him he gets them, and they die for him. But whether he wins or loses, he cannot expect the next generation to be so tall; and they are not. Napoleon only three generations ago wanted and used the biggest and strongest men, and they fought and died for him. Later, Michelet, the great French historian, declared that by his wars Napoleon had taken almost five inches from the stature of the French people. Observers in France today are noting how small are the French soldiers compared with the German and British.

A Personal Statement

There are so-called "honey and tar" preparations that cost the dealer half as much but sell at the same price as the original and genuine Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. We never offer these imitations and substitutes. We know you will buy Foley's whenever you need a cough syrup if you once use it. People come long distances for the true FOLEY'S—over thirty years the leading remedy for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, bronchial and lagrippe coughs. Sold everywhere.—(Advt.)
